

The image is a detailed site plan of a residential development. The central area is a large rectangular plot with a grid of small, light green rectangular units. A network of winding, light-colored paths or roads traverses this grid. To the left, there are several larger, grey-outlined building footprints. To the right, a blue water feature, possibly a canal or river, runs parallel to the main plot. The entire site is bordered by a thick green line. Small green dots are scattered throughout the grid area, and some larger green shapes are placed along the paths. A white rectangular box with black text is located on the left side of the plan, pointing to a specific location.

Ingang
natuurgedeelte